Renewable Energy

As one of the first legal firms to focus on the renewable energy market we have built up considerable specialist expertise in this field and now act for a number of UK and European based companies specialising in the delivery of energy from a range of solar, wind and anaerobic digestion technologies. From large solar, anaerobic and wind farm projects to roof-mounted installations we are able to provide the specialist property and related corporate legal advice required.

Technology

We offer specialist advice to businesses in the technology sector. This enables us to tailor our legal advice efficiently and effectively. Examples of our experience include assisting technology clients with the licensing, developing, hosting and interoperability of clinical software solutions, as well as advising clients within the FinTech sector. We also advise technology clients on the implications of GDPR. Whether you are a business offering technical solutions, an investor or a business looking to use third party technology, we can provide the specialist legal advice you require.
